DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Claims 2, 5, 9, and 14 are canceled.
2. Claims 18-21 are new.
3. Claims 1, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 10-13, 15-21 are allowed.

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 10-13, and 15-21 are allowed.

Claims 1, 4, 8, and 13 are allowable because no prior arts at this point can completely encompass all of the claims' limitations.

Claim 1 states:

A computer apparatus having a wireless LAN (Local Area Network) connecting unit for connection with a wireless LAN, the computer apparatus comprising:

a GPS (Global Positioning System) receiver responsive to a GPS signal for producing current position data representative of a current position of the computer apparatus; and an area data output unit responsive to the current position data for producing specific area data representative of a specific area including the current position;

the wireless LAN connecting unit being preliminarily given a plurality of wireless

LAN communication modes corresponding to a plurality of area data, respectively, the wireless LAN connecting unit being responsive to the specific area data for automatically setting, as a selected communication mode, one of the wireless LAN communication modes which corresponds to the specific area data, thereby carrying out transmission/reception via the wireless LAN in the selected communication mode:

wherein:

each of the wireless LAN communication modes corresponding to the area data is determined by a specific radio frequency channel and a specific transmit power level used in an area represented by the area data corresponding thereto:

the wireless LAN connecting unit carrying out transmission/reception via the wireless LAN by the use of the specific radio frequency channel and the specific transmit power level which determine the selected communication mode.

Furthermore, Examiner agrees that the features of claim 2 which have been incorporated into claim 1, on the other hand, are directed to a computer apparatus in which each separate specific area data is provided with a specific radio frequency channel and a transmit power level. Prior art previously presented, Chrystie, on the other hand, teaches the use of multiple RF channels for one specific area data (e.g., for a radio base station cell), and thus Chrystie teaches away from the features of claim 2. Furthermore, the Office Action asserts that column 2, lines 7-17 and 27-44 of Chrystie describes a system in which a transmit power level is determined for a selected area.

Art Unit: 2683

Applicant respectfully disagrees. In particular, column 2, lines 27-44 of Chrystie describes a cellular radio base station system in which a plurality of RF transceivers are provided at a same location (e.g., a same area). Each of the RF transceivers can have its power level adjusted, but this seems to be for automatic gain control purposes. Also, like the discussion provided above, Chrystie actually teaches away from using a single transmit power level at a specific area, since Chrystie's plurality of RF transceivers provided at a single area presumably output signals at differing transmit power levels.

Therefore, for the reasons given above, and since the other cited art of record do not make up for the above-mentioned deficiencies of Chrystie, claim 1 is patentable over the cited art of record. Claims 4, 8, and 13 are allowable for similar reasons.

Claims 3, 6, 7, 10-12, 15-21 are allowed for their dependence on allowable claims.
